

MOST OF "PRICE SUPPORT" CORN IN COUNTY SOLD

Most of the price support corn in Adams county has been sold or is planned to be sold, H. J. Sell, chairman of the Adams county Production and Marketing committee, reported today.

Approximately 45,000 bushels of corn had been placed under loans and purchase agreements this year, with the notes for the corn due to expire at the end of this month.

Under the plan, the government guarantees a minimum price of $1.56 per bushel for corn under a loan or purchase agreement plan.

The corn was stored on the farm of the person raising the corn.

Going On Open Market

Under the loan agreement, if the farmer sells his corn at a price higher than the amount guaranteed, $1.56 per bushel, he repays the government for the loan and pockets the difference. If he cannot sell at a figure higher than that he simply turns the corn over to the government.

Farmers have reported securing up to $1.65 a bushel for their corn. Sell said, in explaining that most of the farmers contacted have informed him they are planning to sell their price supported corn on the open market. One farmer sold 2,700 bushels recently, making $1.58 net per bushel.

Wheat Moving

Because of the prices being paid in the open market, Sell said, he believes even those few farmers who planned to turn in their corn will reconsider and sell otherwise.

Wheat is beginning to move into the metal bins placed along the Harrisburg road by the PMA last year, Sell said. He reported that most of it is wheat from other sources, but added that some Adams county wheat may go into the bins before the season is over. The PMA is constructing a 20 by 100 building at the present time at the Biglerville road site for additional storage place. So far bins to be placed at New Chester have not been constructed.

ATTENDANCE AT FIFTH RETREAT SETS NEW MARK

More than 290—the largest number in the five years of its existence—attended the annual Lutheran Laymen's Retreat held Saturday and Sunday at the local Lutheran theological seminary.

John C. Small of Fayetteville, was re-elected president of the informal organization which arranges for the annual retreats. The third week-end in July was selected as the time for the sixth annual retreat to be held at the seminary next summer.

Details of church activities as well as meditations and prayer occupied the week-end of laymen.

Among the speakers were Alexander Graf, of Canada, who fought with the White Russian army at the beginning of the Russian revolution; Dr. G. Elson Ruff, editor of The Lutheran Rev. Hans Wunderlich, an exchange preacher from Bavaria now in the U.S. studying youth work, who was at Camp Nauwauka last week, and Vicar Maria Trute, an instructor in a church seminary in the western section of Berlin.

Devotions and meditations were conducted by Dr. Harvey D. Hoover, who is one of the organizers of the retreats, and Dr. Harry P. Baughman.

State Police Find Lady's Lost Handbag

An Ohio woman who left her handbag and hat in a tourist cabin on Lincolnway East will receive both missing articles by mail shortly, through the efforts of the state police of the Gettysburg substation.

Mr. and Mrs. G. J. Walsh of Euclid, Ohio, missed the handbag and hat after leaving here on their westward trip Sunday. They stopped at the state police substation at Butler, Pa., and reported the circumstances.

Since they did not remember the name of the cabins where they had stayed, the task was more difficult for the local authorities, but Cpl. Jack Bartlett, after interrogating several cabin proprietors, found the missing articles at Eyer's cabins, near Thomasville.

BANK SCENES ARE SHOT FOR LUTHERAN FILM

The climax sequence in "For Good or Evil," the United Lutheran church movie production being filmed at Arendtsville, was "shot" Sunday, but the production continued today as other scenes were taken to be tied in to the finished production.

The "climax" scene occurs in the Arendtsville national bank and the shots there were taken on Sunday in order to prevent interference with the regular course of business at the bank. Additional "shooting" is scheduled for the bank this afternoon after the bank closes at 3 o'clock.

Vault "Blown Up"

For the production the Arendtsville bank has gained an additional vault, it was learned today. The regular vault at the bank, which will be the location of a number of scenes in the film, is too small to use the larger movie cameras, and as a result Lane Studios here was secured to take pictures of the interior of the vault. The pictures were "blown up" to full-scale size and the actors are actually performing before the full size pictures, instead of in the actual vault.

This morning three scenes were shot at the restaurant and home of W. A. Raffensperger near the bank in Arendtsville. A kitchen scene was filmed, as well as a dining room scene showing a birthday party for a one-year-old child and a bedroom scene for the birth of the child in the picture.

At the Lutheran parsonage one room of which is being used as the "banker's living room," in the production, another scene was shot this afternoon.

The "shots" taken today covered the years 1920, 1930 and 1950.

Sunday morning the actors and production crew began work at 8:15 o'clock and a period of devotions was conducted by the Rev. Robert C. Schiebel.

"AG" TEACHERS TO GET TRAINING

Adams county's agricultural education and veterans' agriculture teachers, along with principals of the various high schools who may wish to attend, will undergo two days of field instruction in forestry August 8 and 9 at Caledonia.

T. R. Jones, supervisor of forestry education for the state Department of Forests and Waters, will be the instructor for the course. The teachers will meet at the district foresters' office at Caledonia August 8 at 9 a.m. and then travel to the Waynesboro water company tract for study of identification of trees, how trees grow, light, soil and moisture requirements for different tree species and effects of methods of cutting on natural reproduction. On the afternoon of that date they will visit Brandon Hollow to study how to make woodlot inventories, how to estimate the volume of standing timber on a sample plot, and determination of allowable cut.

August 9 the group will go to Caledonia Plantation, Mt. Cydonia Plantation, Rocky Mountain Hollow and the Nunemaker woodlot near Mont Alto, and a grazed woodlot near Falling Spring. During the day the group will discuss where and when to plant trees, thinning and pruning, treating of woodlots, weeding of young natural stands, selling logs and standing timber, markets and specifications and fire damage to forest products and soils.

IRON AND STEEL BEGINNINGS ARE CAMPFIRE TOPIC

The beginning of the American iron and steel industry were outlined Sunday evening to an audience of 150 at the first of the tenth annual series of "campfire" programs held by the Gettysburg National military park on East Cemetery Hill.

Dennis Kurjak, of the Hopewell Village National Historic site near Birdsboro, told how the village had been constructed in colonial times around a cold-blast charcoal-burning iron furnace. "The community life was in some respects similar to the manners of medieval Europe and was largely self-sustaining," he noted.

"This condition prevailed at Hopewell beyond the colonial period, little changed, down through the 19th century until the furnace was closed permanently in 1883, after 113 years of activity. The quiet of abandonment gradually settled over the place and it became a ghost community. Fortunately, the group of early industrial structures and the surrounding picturesque houses were preserved, even though abandoned except for limited farm purposes, because of the isolated nature of the site in the hills back of the Schuylkill River."

Illustrates Talk

Illustrating his talk with pictures of the ancient homes, buildings and furnaces at Hopewell Village, Kurjak noted that "Pennsylvania's first boomery forge was built in 1716 near Pottstown. William Bird, who was born in Raritan, N. J. in 1703, worked as a wood chopper, saved his money and then went into business for himself, constructing his first forge in 1740 on the site of modern Birdsboro. His son, Mark Bird, constructed Hopewell (Please Turn to Page 2)

Maj. Gen. Dean Escaped Burning Taejon; Listed Officially As "Missing"

An Advanced American Command Post In Korea, July 24 (AP) — Maj. Gen. William F. Dean, the fighting commander of the fighting 24th Division, escaped burning Taejon Thursday night after personally leading a bitter street-by-street battle against tank-led North Korean hordes.

But the general stayed behind in the mountains—now enemy territory—to round up American stragglers.

When last reported early Friday morning, Dean had not been wounded, although others in his party were hit in a running fight out of Taejon.

The account came from an aide, Lt. Arthur Clarke of Boone, Iowa. Clarke led a dozen men from Dean's party into American lines at noon Sunday.

(Earlier, the army had listed the 50-year-old Dean as missing in action. A report to General MacArthur's headquarters by Col. Jimmie Kim, Dean's interpreter, said the general had been wounded. Kim, hit by a machinegun bullet in the flight from Taejon, dropped out because he could not keep up with the party. He later made his way to safety.)

Tomato Fields Hit By Blight

Late blight is active in a number of Adams county tomato fields, County Agent M. T. Hartman noted today. Further spread of the blight and amount of loss will be partially dependent upon weather, with cool nights and wet weather favoring increase of the blight and dry hot weather retarding it.

He suggested three sprays, any one of which can be used at ten-day intervals, to protect against the blight. The sprays, per 100 gallons, are either two pounds of actual fixed copper, six pounds of copper sulfate and three pounds of fresh spray lime or one pound ziram and two pounds of 50 per cent fixed copper.

9,000 TOURISTS VISITED 'FIELD OVER WEEK-END

Tourist visitation and battlefield travel are setting new records this year. Close to 9,000 persons visited the battlefield and the National cemetery over the past week-end, according to records kept by Vernon S. Lunt, superintendent of the cemetery.

There were 122 guided trips over the battlefield Saturday and 151 Sunday. There were also five buses, with 182 people Saturday and two buses with 59 more Sunday.

The estimated number of visitors, many of whom did not employ guides, was 4,086 Saturday and 4,891 Sunday, or a two-day total of 8,977.

Pa. And N. Y. Lead

Pennsylvania and New York are still leading all other states in the number of cars which have visited here this year, but the average week-end sees automobiles from between 25 and 30 states, several Canadian provinces and from U. S. possessions or foreign countries.

One car from Hawaii visited the battlefield Sunday. On another recent day there were cars from the Canal Zone and other distant points.

Not all of the visitors to Gettysburg come armed with much advance knowledge of the historical points of interest here, questions asked of guides and others reveal.

A woman got out of an automobile at the rostrum at the south end of the National cemetery this past week-end and wanted to know if the rostrum was "Spangler's Mill." She also wanted to know if the spring were inside the structure.

Tourists' Questions

Many tourists come here with the mistaken idea that the statue of Lincoln seated in a chair is at Gettysburg, instead of Washington. A woman recently asked for the amphitheater. She gave the impression that she did not believe the person she questioned when he said there was no amphitheater here and that she probably meant the one at Washington.

Other tourists know what they are looking for but do not know how to ask for it. Several want to see the "flame" or the "torch" and are directed to the Eternal Light Peace Memorial. Others ask for the "electric eye," meaning, no doubt, the electric map. Hundreds of tourists are amazed at the size of the battlefield and the number of historical markers and monuments.

They ask "Where is the battlefield?" and show considerable surprise when they often get an answer "It's all around the town."

Visitors have been in Gettysburg from all 48 states of the union during the past ten days, the register at the National Museum here shows. Other visitors to the museum during the period were from the District of Columbia, England, Canada, India, Puerto Rico, China, North Ireland, Trinidad, Holland, South Africa, Canal Zone, Cuba and Italy.

Good Samaritan Camp Opens Today

The Good Samaritan camp near Harney opened today for the annual two-week session, with about 30 scheduled to attend.

Henry T. Bream and James Hafer are in charge of arrangements. A number of tents have been set up for the use as dormitories and cook tents. The camp itself is more than a half century old. In former days most of those attending stayed at the camp throughout the entire two-week period. Now most of the campers carry out their work here and visit the camp only during the non-working hours.

MISS DIVELEY AND J. L. BROWN WED SATURDAY

The Evangelical and Reformed church, Arendtsville, was the scene of a pretty summer wedding Saturday at 4 p.m. when Miss Darlene Doris Diveley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Diveley, Biglerville R. 1, became the bride of James LeRoy Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Brown, Nottingham, Pa. The Rev. Nevin R. Prantz, pastor of the bride, officiated.

White gladioli and ferns were used in decorating the front of the church and baskets of white flowers and ferns were placed on the windows.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a ballerina-length gown of white Chantilly lace and net with a fitted bodice and sweetheart neck line. She wore a halo hat trimmed with orange blossoms and a waist-length veil of illusion. Her accessories were of white. She carried a white Bible with ribbon streamers and topped with an orchid.

Sister Is Maid of Honor

Mrs. James Slouch, Oxford, Pa., the matron of honor, wore a blue net dress trimmed with Chantilly lace. She, as well as other attendants of the bride, wore picture hats and shoes to match their gowns which were made on similar lines as the dress of the bride.

Houghton Firm Buys E. Smethport Plant

The Houghton Laboratories, Inc., of Olean, of which Russell M. Houghton, a graduate of Gettysburg college and husband of the former Virginia Mitchell of Gettysburg, is president, has purchased the East Smethport plant of the Susquehanna Chemical company, according to word received here. Mrs. Houghton is a daughter of Mrs. George Mitchell, Lincoln Square.

The Smethport plant will be converted to the manufacture of a plastic coating material that has found a heavy market in the petroleum industry, company officials said. Houghton Laboratories, Inc., was incorporated in September, 1949, after it had been in operation about a year. Its Olean plant employs about 30 persons, including sales personnel. About 15 will be employed at Smethport when alterations are completed.

One of the company's products is "Hysol 6000," a plastic material which has many uses, including insulators for television sets. The company also makes "Coradon" and "Coradal," plastic coatings for metal as protection against rust and corrosion.

Tokyo, Tuesday, July 25 (AP) — North Korean invaders were attacking Monday all along a 150-mile front from Taejon eastward to the coastal town of Yongdok, but "continued to be repulsed" by American and South Korean defenders, General MacArthur's headquarters reported early today.

Field dispatches described two hard assaults on separate American defense lines deep along back roads in rugged south-central Korea.

A third Red column had slipped down the west coast to Kwangju, near the southwest tip of Korea in a broad flanking threat.

Dispatches from the front late Monday night said Red pressure mounted steadily all day against American lines astride the Taejon-Yongdok highway, while 20 to 30 miles northeast another drive was in progress, pronging out along three roads.

On the Yongdok front, AP Correspondent Hal Boyle reported Red infantry at one time got behind advanced American positions and threw up a mortar-backed road block.

This serious threat was cleared out in two hours with the aid of American tanks and artillery, Boyle reported.

"We didn't fool with it; we sent the tanks to clean it up," he quoted an artillery commander. (This was one of the few references made to American tanks.) Boyle added however, that North Korean frontal pressure was still mounting, with steady artillery and mortar firing all Monday afternoon.

North and northeast of Yongdok, a force identified as the North Korean Second Infantry division pushed its three-spear attack on other American positions.

Knock Out 5 Tanks

One second-division column reached Poun, 22 miles north of Yongdok and 35 miles northwest of the rail-highway hub of Kumchon.

American planes and ground troops were credited with knocking out five of the eight tanks leading about 700 Red infantrymen near Poun.

The two other columns of the Red Second division were reported 15 miles and 20 miles northeast of Poun on two rugged mountain trails that wind southward west of the town of Hamchang.

General MacArthur's press release early Tuesday also said a South Korean division withdrew from Yongju — 30 miles farther northeast of Hamchang — to more tenable positions two miles south of Yongju.

MacArthur's Report

MacArthur's release outlined the point as running generally from west to east as follows:

From Kwangju in southwest Korea, 28 miles northeast of Namwon, 26 miles northward through Chinan, thence to points eight miles northwest of Yongdok, four miles south of Okchon, two miles north of Yecheon, two miles south of Yongju and thence to the east coast two miles south of shattered Yongdok.

MacArthur's report said Red tank-infantry teams ranged as far southwest as the outskirts of Mokpo, a South Korean naval port 45 miles southwest of Kwangju. The announcement said these teams were meeting resistance only from units of the South Korean National police.

A savage U. S. First Cavalry Division counter-attack stopped an earlier Red thrust along the mountain highway leading to Yongdok. An expected second Red attack in this second failed to materialize in the afternoon.

Win Rough And Tumble

In the early thrust at the First Cavalry, the Reds kicked off with tanks, then shot their infantry at American lines. The fresh cavalrymen went to close quarters with the Reds and beat them back in a one hour and 15 minute rough and tumble fight.

Fighters and bombers went out at dawn Monday to support the U. S. ground troops.

B-29 superforts struck in clear weather at Communist transport lines. They dropped 80 tons of bombs on bridges and roads leading to the Taejon front. All the superforts returned safely.

The Fifth Air Force moved its advance base from southern Japan to Korea. Already it has at least two fields in operation. This means shorter runs and more time over the battlefield for U. S. fighter planes.

The U. S. counter thrust developed after a Communist tank attack along the mountainous, winding Taejon-Yongdok highway was stopped Sunday. That attack was (Please Turn to Page 2)

PENNSYLVANIA ANTI-AIRCRAFT UNITS ALERTED

Harrisburg, July 24 (AP) — Gov. James H. Duff today alerted eight units of the 51st Anti-Aircraft Artillery Brigade of the Pennsylvania National Guard for induction into the federal service.

Duff, who is commander in chief of the PNG, said he was acting at the direction of the President and secretary of defense.

The governor said he immediately relayed the orders to Maj. Gen. Frank A. Weber, state adjutant general and to Maj. Gen. Charles Curtis Albright, commander of the Pennsylvania National Guard. Curtis now is with his command at Camp Perry, Ohio, for summer field training.

Will Be Replaced

The strength of the various units of the brigade was undisclosed.

At the same time, Duff said immediate preparations are being made to replace all units of the PNG called into active duty with Pennsylvania State Guard units.

The State Guard first was organized to serve on the home front while the Pennsylvania National Guard was in federal service during World War Two.

Duff said the State Guard will be re-activated "in order that the armories may be kept filled up to assure complete internal security and protection of the vital facilities and industrial establishments within the Commonwealth."

While Duff's announcement did not say when the PNG units called up would go into federal service, previous statements from Washington said that National Guardsmen inducted into federal service would have at least 30 days to adjust their personal affairs.

INTERMENT OF REDS ASKED

Pittsburgh, July 24 (AP)—A Pittsburgh common pleas court judge who served as a war crimes jurist in Germany has asked that the Federal government intern 11 western Pennsylvanians identified as Communist party leaders.

The request was made Saturday by Judge Michael A. Musmanno in a letter to U. S. Attorney General J. Howard McGrath.

Judge Musmanno said the 11 are "engaged in activities which, if unchecked, may threaten certain phases of the United States government, the government of the state of Pennsylvania and the welfare of the American people."

The jurist said all 11 of the men were identified as Communists by Matt Cvetk, former FBI undercover agent in testimony before the House Committee on Un-American Activities several months ago.

The 11 were identified by Judge Musmanno as: Steve Nelson, western Pennsylvania organizer of the Communist party; Andy Onda, Oabor Kish, Jim Dolson, Leo Fisher, William Albertson, Sam Reed, Calvin Brook, Dave Grant, Bill Gordon, and Harold Orick.

Dolson, Pittsburgh representative of the Communist Daily Worker, was the only one of the 11 who could be reached immediately. He said "I do not wish to make any comment at this time."

RED BARRAGE COVERS JUNKS

Taipei, Formosa, July 24 (AP) — A defense ministry spokesman said today a number of junks were approaching Quemoy island under cover of a Chinese Communist artillery barrage.

It may be the long expected invasion attempt against the Nationalist held island used as a blockade base against the Reds.

The spokesman said Nationalist forces on Quemoy, just off the mainland port of Amoy, were adequate to meet the expected Red attack. He said they would be supported by locally assigned Nationalist air and naval units.

Communist artillery began bombarding the town of Guanau, on Quemoy's northeast coast, at 11 p.m. Sunday (8 a.m. EST Sunday).

The spokesman said President Truman's July 27 request to halt air and sea operations against the Red mainland did not preclude the defense of Nationalist positions.

Asked whether there was effective cooperation between Nationalists and the United States Seventh fleet, assigned to safeguard Formosa from Red invasion, the spokesman replied: "That's a military secret."

furnace in 1770-71 and it became the nucleus of Hopewell Village, a small manorial settlement of furnacemen, moulders, colliers, teamsters, wheelwrights, blacksmiths and wood choppers. A common store, tenant gardens and nearby farms operated by the Bird family supply all ordinary economic wants.

"During the Revolutionary War, Mark Bird fitted out 300 men of the 2nd Battalion, Berks county militia, at his own expense. He provided large quantities of food and Hopewell iron to the Confederation and went heavily into debt. As a result of his inability to obtain any payment from the Continental Congress the currency devaluation and a flood, Hopewell Furnace was advertised for sheriff's sale in April 1788.

Others who operated the furnace afterward were more successful and by 1821 twenty-three types of stoves, besides a variety of other castings and pig iron were manufactured at Hopewell."

PHILLIES, A'S WIN SUNDAY IN DOUBLEHEADERS

By RALPH RODEN
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The Philadelphia Whiz Kids are performing beyond Manager Eddie Sawyer's fondest expectations.

Sawyer, who brought his young charges home a surprise third last season, said in the spring that he could settle for an encore this year. At the moment it appears that the Phils will better their 1949 deeds. In many quarters the Phils are looked upon as the next National League champions.

The lone fly in the ointment is the imminent departure of Curt Simmons, 21-year-old star lefthander, or a four of duty with the National Guard. Simmons leaves July 29 for a 4-day hitch at Indianapolis Gap.

During that time the Phils are at home for 17 games.

13th for Simmons

Simmons recorded his 13th victory yesterday as the Phils cooled off the Cincinnati Reds in a doubleheader and gained undisputed possession of first place.

The $65,000 bonus beauty turned back the Reds, 12-4, in the opener. The Phils took the second, 7-4, behind Russ Meyer and Jim Konstanty to snap their tie with the St. Louis Cardinals for the top rung. The Cards beat the Boston Braves, 8-4, in a single encounter.

Simmons scattered ten hits and fanned seven while his mates came up with a 15-hit attack that included a pair of home runs by Willie Jones and one apiece by Andy Seminick and Del Ennis.

Braves Now Fourth

Lefty Al Brazie, with help in the ninth from Harry Brecheen, stopped the Braves on 12 hits, the same number the Cards scored off Bob Chipman and Bucky Walters. The Cards however backed up Brazie with four double plays.

The loss dented the Braves from third to fourth place, with the Brooklyn Dodgers moving up. The Dodgers outslugged the Pittsburgh Pirates, 11-6. The Bums broke a 6-6 tie with a four-run rally in the eighth that Gil Hodges featured with a three-run homer.

Sheldon Jones, knocked out in each of his four starts, turned in the pitching gem of the day—a 3-0, one-hit victory for the New York Giants over the Chicago Cubs in the second game of a doubleheader.

American Race Tight

The Giants also won the first game, 5-3, with Wes Westrum knocking in three runs, one on his 16th homer. Larry Jansen went the distance to gain his 10th victory.

In the equally close American League pennant scramble, the pace-setting Detroit Tigers staged a two-out, ninth-inning rally to whip the runner-up New York Yankees, 6-5. The win boosted the Tigers' edge to a game and a half. A victory by the Yankees, who won the first two games of the series, would have enabled them to take the lead.

With two down and a man on, Host Evers, Gerry Priddy and Don Holloway singled to turn the tide. Alie Reynolds yielded the first two hits and Kolloway's game-winning blow came off Joe Page.

A's Win Doubleheader

Bob Lemon became the majors' biggest winner. He turned in his 15th triumph for the Cleveland Indians, who beat the Washington Senators, 6-2.

The Boston Red Sox whipped the St. Louis Browns, 6-2. Ellis Kinder went all the way to gain his 10th conquest.

Philadelphia vacated last-place in favor of the Browns by taking a twin bill from the Chicago White Sox, 2-1 and 5-4.

Haverstick Wins Amateur Trophy

Flourtown, Pa., July 24 (AP)—The two-foot-high silver trophy emblematic of the Pennsylvania Amateur Golf Championship has found a permanent home with Harry H. (Billy) Haverstick, of Lancaster.

The 32-year-old automobile dealer beat off a late challenge by Neil White, of Overbrook, at Philadelphia Cricket club yesterday to win his third state crown, 3 and 1, and gain permanent possession of the cup.

Haverstick piled up a 4 up lead during the first 11 holes before White captured his first hole on the 12th with a birdie four. White again reduced Haverstick's lead on the 15th with a par three with trout available only on days when hatchery trucks fill the streams.

The association also recommended that the start of the trout season be set up from April 15 to May 1, to give the trout a better chance to feed on spring insects.

Would Reduce Limit On Trout

Pottsville, Pa., July 24 (AP)—The Schuylkill County Sportsmen's association wants the trout limit reduced from ten to five a day. In a meeting yesterday the association went on record favoring the limited catch. A spokesman said that trout fishing in Pennsylvania has become a one or two-day sport, with trout available only on days when hatchery trucks fill the streams.

The association also recommended that the start of the trout season be set up from April 15 to May 1, to give the trout a better chance to feed on spring insects.

Hannover, Germany, has about 475,000 population.

With the two top running teams losing decisions in the South Penn League Sunday afternoon, the race tightened up considerably.

Gettysburg nosed out Brushtown 17-16 in 10 innings in a wild affair on the local field. Coach Rogers Herr's outfit pulled up a 16-3 lead at the end of seven frames and was apparently on its way to an easy conquest when Brushtown came up with six runs in the eighth and seven more in the ninth to tie up the score. In the last of the 10th Wright walked and streaked to third on the catcher's throw to second base which was not covered. Wright then tallied the winning run on Mike Tate's infield grounder.

Hunterstown nipped Green Springs 2-1 in a snappy game at Green Springs. Clyde Little hurled shutout ball until the ninth for Hunterstown. With one out he issued a pass and two straight singles produced a run. Mel King then replaced Little and got the next two batters on infield pop flies. Rhodes hurried for Green Springs.

In another one-run decision Barlow edged Granite 3-2 at Granite. Bernie Steiner halted the seven-game winning streak of the league-leading Greenmount team by gaining a 7-4 victory for the Bonneauville nine on the latter's field.

Harrisburg, July 24 (AP)—Earl S. Cummings today holds the post of president of the Pennsylvania state branch of the National Association of Postal Supervisors. Cummings is assistant postmaster at Alliquippa.

Cummings was elected Saturday at the conclusion of the group's two-day annual meeting here.

Eastern League

(By The Associated Press)
The Wilkes-Barre Indians five games in front of the Eastern league, finally have chalked up a doubleheader victory—their first of the season. The Indians whipped the tail-end Scranton Miners, 13-7 and 4-3, yesterday.

Sad Sam Jones won the opener at Scranton, his 14th triumph of the year, against two defeats. He unleashed 11 strikeouts to bring his season's total to 126.

The Williamsport Tigers edged the Elmira Pioneers, 1-0, at Elmira, when Alex McNeillane copped a tight pitchers' duel with Nick Andromidas. McNeillane allowed only two hits.

The Albany Senators won a pair from the Hartford Chiefs, 6-4 and 4-2 and the second-place Binghamton Triplets downed the Utica Blue Six, 7-4. Utica and Hartford are tied for third place, nine and a half games back of Binghamton.

On Saturday, Utica edged Binghamton, 8-7; Hartford swamped Albany 14-1, and Elmira defeated Williamsport, 5-1. Wilkes-Barre and Scranton were idle.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, July 24 (AP)—You can get into a red hot argument in almost any major league city but Brooklyn by nominating a candidate for 1950 "rookie of the year" honors.

In Brooklyn you'll only get hollow laughs. It's this way. . . . Top candidates in the National League seem to be Sam Jethroe, the Braves' speedster; Bob Miller, Phillies' pitcher who won eight in a row and Gus Bell of the Pirates. . . .

When the arguing starts, you probably can toss in the Cardinals' Bill Howerton, Joe Adcock of the Reds, Bob Borowski and maybe Preston Ward of the Cubs and probably a few more names if you can decide just when a guy ceases to be a rookie. . . .

In the American, Boston's big Walt Drope seems to get the call on his hitting, and they say there are considerably worse fielders playing first base. Very much in the picture are Cleveland's Flip Rosenfield and Luke Easter (if they qualify). Chico Carrasquel and Bob Cain of the White Sox, Tom Upton of the Browns and Sandalo Conesuegra, Conrad Marrera and Irv Noren of the Senators. . . . Reason for the ruckus in Brooklyn, where the rookies are just rookies, is that Jethroe, Ward, Carrasquel and Noren were all sold out of the Dodger chain. They scouted Bell too, when he was just a kid but decided he was a year away from pro baseball.

IT'S A TUFF SHOT

Joe Bach, now St. Bonaventure grid coach, took up golf in dead earnest this summer and finally found an opponent he thought was in his own class. Ted Marchibroda, star soph quarterback, apparently didn't know much about golf either.

But in a showdown, Ted's second shots turned out to be beauties and Bach finally slipped up to see just how he did it. Noticing Joe's stealthy approach, Marchibroda looked up sheepishly and remarked: "What a coincidence, Coach. The ball landed right on a tee."

MONDAY MATINEE

Don't be surprised if Bow Ferriss gets back into the big leagues. He's chucking great ball for Birmingham and tells friends his arm feels better than it has in three years.

Haverford, Pa., July 24 (AP)—There is just no explanation of the reversal which gave Dick Savitt the 15th Annual Pennsylvania State Grass Courts tennis championship.

And there was no inkling of an approaching turn-about as Eddie Moylan won the opening game of the third set with a service ace.

But Savitt rebounded from the loss of the first two sets yesterday to win the two hour and one minute final at Merion Cricket club, 3-6, 9-11, 6-2, 6-1, 6-2, and forge the fifth link in his chain of tournament triumphs begun in May at Cornell University.

All-Stars Defeat Mechanicsburg 7-6

The All-Stars of the Softball league defeated the Mechanicsburg Naval Depot team 7-6 on the local field Saturday evening. Mike Erbio's homerun clinching the decision in the eighth inning. The Harrisburg D. and L. garage team failed to appear for its contest.

Next Saturday the local girls will meet the Navyettes from Mechanicsburg while the All-Stars will meet the Harrisburg DAV aggregation on the local field. Proceeds will be given to a local girl who was injured in a previous contest.

Interstate League

Wilmington was back on top today in the Alphonse-Gaston Interstate league pennant race.

The Blue Rocks outslugged Hagerstown, 7 to 6, yesterday to return to the first place position. They had vacated a day earlier when Hagerstown's Braves scored 11-3 over Wilmington.

Elsewhere in the class B league yesterday, Sunbury and Lancaster split a twin bill, Lancaster grabbing the free-hitting opener 13-11 and Sunbury taking the nightcap, 4-0 behind the fancy two-hit pitching of Southpaw Hewitt Bryden.

Third place Trenton, five and one-half games behind Wilmington, turned back York 4-1, while fourth place Harrisburg scored 4-1 over Allentown.

Today's schedule: Wilmington at Hagerstown, (2); Harrisburg at Allentown, Sunbury at Lancaster, (only games scheduled).

Hanover's baseball team is eligible to participate in the state National Baseball Congress tournament this week on a field near Pittsburgh as the result of walloping Hummelstown 15-5 Saturday afternoon at Hanover.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS AGO

The storm of Thursday night was a very general one, and we hear from all quarters of trees uprooted, fences prostrated, etc. The rain, however, has been a very refreshing one to the parched earth.

Webster, will be filled by the Hon.
Edward Everett. Mr. Webster has been appointed secretary of state.

President Fillmore took up his residence last week at the executive mansion. His family, it is said, will not join him until October. Mrs.
General Taylor, Col. and Mrs. Bliss and Dr. Wood and family arrived at the Eutaw House, Baltimore, on Thursday evening, where they intend sojourning for some considerable time.

The mammoth balloon, which has just been constructed at Lancaster by Mr. Wise, is the largest ever made in America, containing in its structure 1,576 yards of silk and capable of carrying eight persons.
It has been constructed by Mr.
Wise to test the practicability of ocean voyages. An ascension is to take place from Lancaster on the third of August.

SEVENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO
The colored people of Gettysburg will hold a picnic at Round Top on

The Inspector of National Cemeteries recently visited Gettysburg and ordered sundry improvements at the cemetery in this place. A new one-story brick building is to be erected near the present lodge, for the use of the superintendent. A well and tank will also be put in the southern part of the grounds, to furnish water for irrigating purposes. The lettering of the head-stones is being repainted. Orders have been issued limiting the driv-

Today's Talk

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE GOSPEL OF LIVING

Here in my unique cabin, in the forest of my summer island retreat,
I find peace and contentment that I find in no other place. There is quiet here. No rush, no hurry, no stepping on people's toes. The scent of the pines, and the cheerful songs of the native birds, give renewed health to the body and hope to the soul.

Here it is that I like to read my little book on Thoreau. I become akin to him. I listen to him. He says: "It would be worth our while to ask ourselves . . . Is our life innocent enough? Do we live inhumanely, toward man and beast, in thought or act? To be serene and successful we must be at one with the universe."

Here is a beautiful place, as well, to read over and over again the Sermon on the Mount, which I keep beside my typewriter on my work desk. The pines whisper to me as I walk under their shade and foliage.
Sunshine and shadow, the rippling waves along the shore, and the softened spring from mossy paths paved with the fall of pine needles, is an inspiration as I walk the paths of "Waskawanaak."

It took me quite a number of years before I realized what an investment one makes in the gospel of living. No other investment is so sound and permanent. Its stock rises with time. It never fails. It's all loaned out from God's great bank!

Again, listen to the voice of Thoreau: "What we do best or most perfectly is what we have most thoroughly learned by the longest practice, and at length it falls from us without our notice, as a leaf from a tree."

Spaced out in our lives there should be hide-a-ways where we might become better known to ourselves, and thus better fitted to become companionable and inspiring to others. We ought to learn the art of giving out, and less devoted to the evil tasks of getting and taking. Greed and selfishness are two of the world's worst destroyers of hope and happiness. If you love you live!

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "Cooperation"

TRAINED FOR THE ROAD

With the first inning the game begins:
Winner or loser must play the nine.
There's never a race but the lad who wins Must run its length from the starting line,
And never is victory or fame bestowed
On one who refuses to train for the road.

For sport or labor, the field or the shop,
This is the law and will ever be:
Nobody starts a career at the top.
No one is born with proficiency.
With patience to learn, ambition the goad,
Who would succeed must train for
the road.

Step by step must the mile be run,
Deed by deed is esteem acquired.
Merit is earned by work well done
And a spirit stout when the body tired.
This for all leaders has been the code:
Who would go far must train for
the road.

As Plants Near Harvest Feeding Adds to Quality

The placement method of applying plant food is efficient on summer sowings.

When gardens near the climax of their beauty and abundance, a ration of balanced plant food will add size and color to flowers, heavier yield and quality to vegetables, and a rich green to the lawn.

Plants which grow vigorously often exhaust one or more of the food elements available to them. A special summer feeding will replenish the larder, and insure the attainment of a vigorous maturity.

Established plants in beds and borders may be fed without disturbing their roots with liquid fertilizer.
Stir a cupful of your garden plant food mixture in a gallon of water and pour it on the soil, avoiding the leaves. Even in a period of drouth, when dry plant food might lie inert until watered in, the plant food in solution will be immediately available to the plants.

Plants growing in rows may be fed the same way, using a pint of the solution on both sides of the row for every three feet.

When summer sowings are made in the vegetable garden, to follow early vegetables which have been cleared off, it is just as important that plant food be provided as in the spring.

The placement method of application, by spreading plant food in shallow trenches on both sides of the row when seeds are sown, will give maximum efficiency. Apply up to four pounds of 100 feet of row, (two pounds on each side).

Make the plant food trenches about four inches deep at least two inches away from the seed drill.
Pour in the plant food evenly, and cover with soil. Then proceed with the seed sowing.
Long season crops, such as tomatoes, peppers, egg plant and others which grow and bear throughout the summer, will be benefited by extra feeding as harvest approaches. Those which bear fruit should be fed after the first fruits set. Pour liquid fertilizer on the soil around each plant or use a tablespoonful of plant food worked into the top soil near the base of each plant, and well watered. Plant food may be applied to row crops by spreading it on the soil along the row, and watering in. Avoid bringing green leaves and stems in direct contact with plant food; and when this happens, wash it off with a hose using sufficient force to clean the leaves quickly.

U.S. POPULATION
150,250,000

Washington, July 24 (AP) — The population of the United States has risen almost 19,000,000 in the past 10 years to a 1950 total officially estimated at 150,250,000.

In announcing preliminary figures for both the nation as a whole and for the individual states, the Census Bureau said Saturday night it still must re-check the totals and account for some 700,000 persons who were on the move during this year's nose-count.

Most of the transients, it said, were either travelers within the country or seamen in the Merchant Marine.

While the final totals will be ready by next December 1, they will not become known until later that month, when President Truman submits them to Congress. It will be up to the lawmakers to decide then how many House members each state will have on the basis of the new figures.

Reckoned roughly, each Congressional district will have 344,000 inhabitants, compared with the 301-000 figure set in 1940, when the nation's population numbered 131,669-275. California will be the big gainer in the House, although it is not yet certain by how many seats.

Detroit, July 24 (AP) — The Army is negotiating with the Cadillac division of General Motors for mass production of tanks. Col. David J.
Crawford, commander of the Detroit arsenal, confirmed negotiations are under way and predicted a contract will be worked out within a few days. Col. Crawford declined to say what type tank Cadillac will build, but unconfirmed reports said it would be the new 28-ton light tank.

Late Vegetables May Be Planted

Plant beets and carrots for winter storage. Also plant leaf lettuce, endive, radishes, New Zealand spinach, bush snap beans, kale and dwarf varieties of peas for a late crop.

There is still time to set out plants of late cabbage and Chines cabbage.
Firm the soil thoroughly around the plants so that the feed roots will contact the soil. Give plenty of water. Cut the upper half of each leaf to lessen the drain on the roots.

Make sure your tomato plants are staked and tied securely. Broken stems should be cut off clean.

If you want your asparagus to bear worth-while crops in coming years, be sure to feed the brush well.
When properly taken care of it should stand at least five feet tall.

Watch evergreens for attacks of the red spider. Use a contact spray for control.

Inspect cabbage for worms and spray or dust with a rotenone if they are present.

When spraying or dusting plants, take special care to cover the undersides of the leaves. Do not apply sprays in the late evening. Wet leaves might encourage mildew.

Nitrogen is applied to golf greens and fairways frequently during the summer. It can be mixed with the hose water by an inexpensive attachment, which siphons liquid plant food from a bucket and insures its further dilution so that it will not injure the grass. Sulphate of ammonia, and ammonium nitrate are the materials often used, both instantly soluble. Half a pound to 100 square feet of lawn area is sufficient. This quantity should be dissolved in at least 10 gallons of water for safe application.

Keep faded flowers picked off if you want annual flowers to bloom all summer. Plants which stop flowering should be cut back heavily to encourage new growth which will bear another crop of flowers.

A flower which no insects bother is pyrethrum, a hardy perennial.

daisy. From plants of the same family one of the most effective insecticides is prepared. They grow from seed in August, flowering the following year and living many years, through the coldest winters.

Mulches should not be used on poorly drained garden soil. Do not apply them until the ground is warm, and water it well before mulching. Mulches are most effective during hot weather when they check evaporation of soil moisture and keep soil temperatures as much at 10 degrees cooler.

Chapter 23

Around noon, the sheriff returned. He was accompanied this time by several watchful-eyed, silent men.

"I don't know whether to hope they'll be successful or not," Cousin Jeff remarked soberly as we watched them go. "If they're not, it'll mean he may still be alive. But—He stopped as he realized that Pick had followed the rest of us out onto the gallery.

"I want him found," Pick announced to no one in particular. "I want him brought home."

Lewis Hays went over to her and put his arm around her waist. "Don't give up hope, dear," he said. "No news is good news, they say. And so long as we don't know for certain..."

She neither yielded to nor resisted his encircling arm.

"But I do know, Lewis?" she said emotionlessly. "I think I've known from the beginning. Father is—dead."

Bobby shuddered.

"It's all so—so horrible!" she exclaimed. "It's as if something had set out to destroy the whole family. Something—supernatural, like Aunt Delphine said."

I thought that this was a cosy remark to make to three members of that family; but I left Henri and cousin Jeff to deal with it, and turned to Amedee.

"Speaking of Aunt Delphine," I began, lowering my voice, "don't you think we ought to make another attempt to find out where she got the sword yesterday?" It might give us a clue as to what happened to Uncle Raoul.

"I was just thinking about that," he replied, "and I believe I've got an idea. Come along and we'll try it out."

We found Aunt Delphine in her room.

"Tante, Peter and I want you to do something for us," Amedee began, taking her hands in his in order to hold her attention. "Will you try?"

She looked up at him fondly. "He won't hurt you now, Dede," she said, "because I promised not to tell. Peter heard me promise."

Amedee glanced at me. "I'll explain later," I whispered to Amedee. "But now we'd better try to find out what she knows about the sword."

Aunt Delphine caught the last two words.

"Yes, chérie, the sword," she said gravely. "You should have given it to Dede, as I told you to. Perhaps then he wouldn't have come for Lee."

"She did give it to me, Tante," Amedee put in. "But that's what we want to ask you about. Where did you find it?"

She looked uncomprehending at first, and I was afraid for a minute that she wasn't going to be able to remember. Then her expression cleared.

"Oh, yes," she said brightly. "You want to know where I got it. I got it from Raoul. He was out there—with them."

When Aunt Delphine said either "they" or "them" with a capital letter in her voice, there was little doubt whom she was talking about. So we let that part pass.

"Can you take us to the place?" Amedee asked.

"Mais certainement!" She rose with the quick energy that seemed so at variance with her frail appearance. "Come, mes enfants."

She led us down the stairs and out of the house.

"If she's merely leading us out on the road, Amedee observed, "it isn't going to mean anything. Henri and Beau and I were over this ground the morning Uncle Raoul disappeared."

Just then we came to a sort of bridge path, that branched off from the main drive. Aunt Delphine turned in it.

"Where does this lead?" I inquired.

"To the paddock and the stables," Amedee replied. "We came this way, too." Then he stopped suddenly. "But it never occurred to us to see whether any of the horses were missing!"

However, Aunt Delphine didn't stop at the entrance to the stables. Instead, she continued along the path where it skirted the fenced-in green expanse of paddock, and disappeared into a miniature woodland of hemlock and scrub pine beyond. Suddenly Amedee stopped. There was an odd expression on his face.

"Peter, you'd better go back," he said in a voice that matched the expression. "I think I know where she's taking us."

"But—" I began to protest, and then I glimpsed something through the trees. It was a squarish, white building, and set in the side facing us was a door of the elaborate, iron grillework for which Louisiana smiths were duly famous 75 to 100 years ago.

"Oh!" I gasped.

"Wait here," Amedee commanded, and went the rest of the distance to the mausoleum alone.

I saw him go up to the iron door, cast one glance through the open part of the grillework, then turn and come quickly back to where Aunt Delphine and I waited.

"Is—he there?" I heard myself ask, and hardly recognized my own voice.

"Yes," he answered. His voice sounded as unnatural as mine had done. "Peter, take Aunt Delphine and go back to the house. Then send Henri or Cousin Jeff to find the sheriff."

Chapter 24

I found Bobby, Henri, and Cousin Jeff sitting in a little group on the west gallery. They must have read my news in my face, for Cousin Jeff asked at once:

"Raoul's been found, Peter? Where?"

I blurted out my story. "Dede waiting there with him," I finished. "He said one of you should go look for Beau and the sheriff."

"We'd better both go," Cousin Jeff decided. There was a sudden grimace about him that made him appear almost a stranger. "Henri, you take the fields on the other side of the road. I'll take this side."

When they had gone, Bobby and I sat for a moment in silence. "How did it happen this time, Peter?" she finally asked.

"I don't know," I answered wearily. "I didn't see him. But what difference does it make?"

"It might make a great deal of difference," Bobby replied slowly. The way she said it, even more than what she said, gave me a nasty little prod in the part of my mind where my imagination is located.

"What's that supposed to mean?" I demanded.

"Three nights ago," she said, "Claude died of a heart attack. Last night, Lee committed suicide. Night before that, Uncle Raoul disappeared and died—we don't yet know how. Peter, I don't believe all three of those deaths, coming so close together that way, were just coincidences. I'm afraid—afraid for Henri."

I knew what she meant. "Peter," she asked, "why do you suppose that Uncle Raoul was found where he was? I mean, why did he go there in the first place?"

"Why, I—I don't know," I stammered. "What's your explanation?" I asked.

"I think," Bobby replied still with her eyes upon Aunt Delphine, "that it had something to do with those questions he was asking about Colonel Dumont's death that evening at supper. You remember? And I believe his own death was in some way connected with the thing, whatever it was, that Colonel Dumont had found out shortly before he died. That's why the way Uncle Raoul died may be important."

I didn't follow that, and said so. Bobby tried to explain. "If he committed suicide like Lee did, then whatever it was he found out, no matter how terrible it was, was something natural. But if he didn't—if he died the way Claude did—then it had to be—the other thing."

Then a new thought occurred to me. Beau also possessed that knowledge, or claimed that he did. Did that mean that he—? But I refused even to consider that idea. No matter how hideous the secret was Beau wouldn't seek death as a way out. He had Pick to think of—Pick who was alone now except for him.

I thought of what he had said that morning, when Amedee had asked him what it was that Lee and Colonel Dumont had discovered.

"Don't make me answer that, Dede," he had said. "It's something you'll all be happier for not knowing."

I don't know how long Bobby and I had been sitting there, each wrapped in thought, when Henri appeared around the corner of the house. His face was completely devoid of color, and there were huge beads of moisture on his forehead.

Bobby ran to him, and caught hold of his arm.

"What's the matter, Henri?" she demanded. "Don't stare like that. You frighten me."

At last he spoke, and his voice was so hoarse, it was more like a groan.

"Bobby, you've got to get away from here," he jerked out. "You and Peter both."

"Why?" I asked.

"I'd rather not tell you, Peter," he said. "But you'd better do as I say. Dede and I can drive you both in to New Orleans this morning."

Amedee's voice sounded unexpectedly behind us.

"What's going on here?" he demanded sharply. "Henri, what are you talking about?"

Henri raised his head and looked at his brother with eyes that were feverishly bright.

"All right; maybe I'd better tell you," he replied more quietly. "You must have noticed back there, Dede, that Uncle Raoul had dragged the big spray of oleanders from the top of Grandpere's casket; he still had one of the flowers clutched in his hand. I picked up the spray to put it back; and I saw—I saw—"

Henri gulped inarticulately once or twice, then his words came with a rush.

"I saw that the screws had been removed from the lid of the casket," he blurted. "And I saw that the lid itself was on crooked, as though—as though something had been pushing at it from the inside!"

Chapter 25

Bobby gave a little, terrified whimper, and hid her face against Henri's coat.

"So that's why you went tearing IT'S DEATH MY DARLING..."

out of there!" Amedee exclaimed. "Henri, you infernal idiot!"

"It's easy enough for you to ridicule the idea of the supernatural," Henri said defiantly. "But, how do you explain the opened casket?"

"I'd have sense enough to realize that those screws couldn't have been unfastened from the inside of the casket. They'd have to be removed from the outside."

"That doesn't explain why the screws were removed in the first place," he said doggedly. "Or who did it?"

"Uncle Raoul did, probably," Amedee replied. "I can't tell you why, because I don't know. Now can you go inside and telephone the coroner without going into a trance?"

Henri rose with an air of injured dignity, and went into the house. Bobby, with a half reproachful glance at Amedee, followed.

"Did you know about the screws before he mentioned them, Dede?" I inquired.

"Yes," he answered. "The sheriff discovered that they'd been removed."

"What does he think about it?" I asked.

He hesitated, then replied reluctantly. "He thinks Lee did it."

Amedee came over and sat down upon the gallery floor at his feet.

"I'll tell you the sheriff's theory, Peter," he said soberly, "and you can see if it makes sense to you. He thinks that Lee, inspired by Claude's death, killed his father in order to get the double inheritance; that he started to hide the body in the coffin with Grandpere, then lost his nerve; that later he fell to brooding over what he had done, and in remorse killed himself with the same weapon he had used to kill his father."

"Dede, you don't actually believe that, do you?" I demanded.

He passed his hand through his tousled hair.

"I hardly know what I believe," he answered wearily.

An hour or so later, the sheriff came and asked to speak to us all together.

"I only wanted to tell you that the coroner's agreed to let Mr. Raoul's death pass as suicide. So when we hold the inquest—"

He got no further than that. Beau shot out of his chair as though it had been a catapult.

"What do you mean, you'll let my father's death pass as suicide, Jeff Wilkes?" he demanded savagely. "It was suicide."

The sheriff didn't answer directly. "After I left here this morning," he began, "I made some inquiries about that will of your grandpa's. I found he'd left orders that if any of you died, that one's share of the estate was to go to his next of male kin. In your cousin Claude's case, that was your father. In his own case, it could have been both you and your brother Lee; but according to a strict reading of the law, it might have been just Lee."

Beau stared at him for a minute. Then he gave a short, harsh laugh. "You fool!" he exclaimed contemptuously. "You complete, damned fool!"

The sheriff's face flamed.

"I've tried to be decent about this," he said. "But if that's the way you feel about it, I'll not hush anything up. We'll see how smart you are, Mr. Beau Dumont, at explaining to a jury why your father and your brother should have committed suicide."

"That won't be necessary, sheriff," Pick said quietly. "I can tell you."

"Beau is right," she went on, gently putting Lewis Hays aside as he attempted to stop her. "My father and my brother Lee both did commit suicide. You see, they both believed that I had killed Claude, the same as Beau did at first when he tried to lie that morning to protect me."

The sheriff was looking utterly dumfounded.

"It's just the sort of fool thing these Dumonts would have done, too," he muttered half to himself.

With a brief nod of farewell, he turned and left the room. A moment later, we heard the front door close behind him.

While Pick had been speaking, Beau had stood staring at her as though he had been frozen into immobility. "I didn't know you thought that, Pick," he said. "But you're wrong, father's and Lee's deaths had nothing to do with you. There was another reason."

"What other could there have been?"

"I can't tell you that," he answered. "But you've got to believe me, Pick. A reason did exist."

"If you know the truth, you'd better tell her, Beau," Cousin Jeff put in.

"I can't," he groaned. There was desperation in his voice now. "I can't tell any of you. Oh, not because I think it might drive the rest of you to suicide. But for you to have to live with the knowledge..."

"With what knowledge?" Henri demanded suddenly. "Beau, what's wrong with us Dumonts? I want to know. I've got a right to."

"That's true," Amedee said. "Remember, Henri and I are planning to be married."

"All right," he flung out with a sort of brutal defiance. "You've both asked for it, so here it is: You can't get married; none of us can. We've got to let the Dumont line die out. There's a curse on the family—the curse of insanity!"

"What!" Amedee was out of his chair as though there had been a steel spring inside of him, and somebody had released it. "Beau,

KEEPING SUMMER LAWNS GREEN

There is no more justification for the often-heard statement that "he has such good luck with his lawn" than there would be in the comment that "he has good luck in keeping his roofs from leaking."

Both tasks call for proper building and care. Neither permits neglect or experimentation.

The most widely common causes of lawn grass failing when hot, dry weather comes in midsummer are: (1) Lack of moisture-holding organic matter in the soil; (2) Starvation; (3) Allowing grass to grow tall and spindly earlier in the season; (4) Mistreatment.

The beautiful verdant lawn of late July and August is invariably the lawn that has been built with a stratum of moisture-holding loam below the rooting level. Not only does this hold moisture through seasonal periods of rainless weather to keep the grass amply supplied, but it offers a medium of safe drainage during periods of heavy rainfall, particularly from late fall until spring.

Lawn grass cannot send long roots out over a radius of many feet and yards in search of nourishment. The roots are seldom longer than 2 inches. Therefore, unless plenty of plant food is within constant reach of the roots, starvation occurs. This happens from early spring until late fall but the evil effects are most seriously noticeable from early July until fall. Again, the vigorous attractive lawn in summer is invariably the lawn that is fertilized systematically around the year every year.

Systematic lawn feeding calls for surface applications of a complete fertilizer in early spring, in early June, and in early September. The editor recommends a 6-8-6 fertilizer, broadcast at the rate of 2 to 3 pounds per 100 square feet and watered gently into the soil at once. If the June application has been neglected, widespread emphasis — Don't it may be made safely at once. Of

Really Fighting Russia, Says Duff

Gallitzin, Pa., July 24 (AP)—Governor James H. Duff said last night "we are really fighting Russia although for all intents and purposes we are at war with the North Koreans."

"Russia has been putting guns and leadership into the fight," Duff told 1,200 persons attending a testimonial dinner for Walter W. Krebs, Johnstown newspaper publisher. "We must take a page from a book of Russia; they have been preparing since the close of the last war."

Duff warned Pennsylvania's industries that the state is a prime target for atomic bomb attack if the Korean conflict explodes into a full-scale war. He said plans are ready now to call up a home defense unit to supplant the Pennsylvania National Guard if it is called to active service.

The dinner honored Krebs—editor and publisher of the Johnstown Tribune and president of the Johnstown Tribune Publishing company—for sparking the $1,300,000 campaign to build Cambria county's war memorial auditorium.

"You're—" Beau finished for him, his mouth twisting with the word into the bitter mockery of a grin. "Yes, Dede, I am. Or I shall be before I die. That's the thing Grandfather had found out."

Kaskaskia, Ill., founded about 1700, was slowly washed away by the Ohio river, disappearing in 1910.

course, this early summer feeding should be omitted where crabgrass is troublesome.

Mowing is not merely a manicuring operation to improve the lawn's appearance. It is a practice to balance top growth with appearance, plus stimulation of the plant to maximum health. All building materials of which the entire grass plant is formed are manufactured in the leaves. Too, adequate top growth shades the ground surface to conserve moisture and prevent growth of such invading weeds as crabgrass.

But on the other hand, if the plant's strength is prodigally wasted on rank top growth, injury and not benefit will result. The successful lawn grower mows frequently from mid-spring until fairly late in the fall, but he sets his mower to cut higher as hot, dry weather approaches in summer. And also, he allows the clipping to remain on the lawn to serve as a valuable mulch and to return nutrients already taken from the soil to manufacture the grass thus cut off.

Perhaps the most serious abuse lawns suffer in summer comes through the mistreatment of attempted irrigation. The average lawn owner "practices" irrigation by the evil and indefensible habit of sprinkling the grass every day or two. Such light applications of water attract grass roots near the surface to obtain the inadequate supply of moisture and there the hot sun injures or kills them the next day.

One thorough soaking a week in dry weather, or even every three or four days depending on the lawn's actual needs, is the proper way to irrigate. Here is an overlooked key to lawn success that warrants frequent and widespread emphasis — Don't sprinkle.

Poultry Farmer Is Found Dead

Towanda, Pa., July 24 (AP)—Maynard Adams, 21-year-old poultry farmer of Berwick R. 2, was found shot to death while hunting ground-hogs with two companions.

State police quoted the companions, Frank Slusser, 17, and Ralph Kishbach, 20, both of Berwick R. 2, as saying they came on Adams' body Saturday after they had separated to hunt near Towanda.

Adams had been shot in the head by a .22 caliber bullet, police said, the type of rifle carried by all three hunters.

Both Slusser and Kishbach denied firing near the spot where they found Adams' body.

Pittsburgh, July 24 (AP)—All-out mobilization of America's military resources was urged in a week-end address by Sen. Edward Martin (R-Pa.) who said the war in Korea "might develop into a four-alarm fire that would consume a large part of the world." He said the present fighting in the Far East is a "one-alarm fire." Martin spoke Saturday before the annual reunion of the Society of the 28th Division. He formerly commanded the National Guard fighting unit.

UNION VESPER SERVICES END

"Our Spiritual and Moral Prospects" was the theme of the sermon by the Rev. David S. Kammerer, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church and president of the Littlestown Ministerium, at the closing summer union vesper service, held Sunday evening in the Crouse Park pavilion. An anthem, "An Even Song" was presented by the choir of St. Paul's Lutheran church with Mrs. Karl Bankert as organist and L. Robert Snyder, director.

All members of the Ministerium were present and participated in the service. The Rev. Harvey B. Simons, pastor of the Centenary Methodist church, presided over the service and offered the invocation. The Rev. Charles B. Robert, secretary-treasurer of the ministerium, was in charge of the offering. A scripture lesson was read by the Rev. Frank E. Reynolds, pastor of Redeemer's Reformed church, and prayer was offered by the Rev. Kenneth D. James, pastor of St. John's Lutheran church. The Rev. John C. Brumbach, pastor of Christ and St. Luke's Reformed churches, pronounced the benediction. The next series of union vesper services will be arranged for at the next meeting of the ministerium in September.

The consistory and the Ladies Aid society of the St. James Reformed church, along the Harney road, will hold their monthly meetings at the church on Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock. The church is considering the purchase of a power lawn mower for the church cemetery. A demonstration of a power mower will be held in the cemetery adjoining the church, preceding the meeting.

Miss Carolyn B. Wise, Cincinnati, Ohio, is spending several days visiting with the Rev. and Mrs. Charles B. Robert, West King street.

Miss Kathryn Shriver, East King street, and Miss Marjorie Bange, Huntingdon, returned on Friday evening from a week's course at the Fred Waring Work Shop, Shawnee on the Delaware in the Pocono mountains. Miss Bange has returned to her home in Huntingdon.

The bell of Redeemer's Reformed church, the Rev. Frank E. Reynolds, pastor, was cracked during the past winter. This past week the bell was repaired by the machine for welding bell metal, which was recently purchased by Walter F. Crouse. The pastor stated that this originally hung in old church building and was made by the Bell company, Troy, N. Y. The Rev. Mr. Reynolds will be one of the leaders at Camp Mischeaux, near Pine Grove Furnace, for the high school age group. He left this afternoon and will return home to conduct services next Sunday, after which he will return for the second week of camp which will close August 5.

Burk Rites Held
Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the J. W. Little and son funeral home, Littlestown, for LeRoy Burk, 55, Crouse Park, who died at the Warner hospital, Friday at 12:45 a.m., as the result of a wound caused by the accidental discharge of a .22 caliber rifle. Services were in charge of his pastor, the Rev. Frank E. Reynolds, pastor of Redeemer's Reformed church. Interment was in the Mt. Carmel cemetery, Littlestown. Pallbearers were Wilbur A. Bankert, Theron W. Spangler, Edward F. Hawk, Lewis Fox, Paul Hiltebeitel and Edward Loeffel.

I. D. Crouse Buried
Funeral services were held this morning at 10 o'clock at the J. W. Little and son funeral home for I. D. Crouse, 75, Lumber street, retired senior member of the I. D. Crouse and son lumber yard and planing mill, who died suddenly on Friday at the lumber establishment. His pastor, the Rev. Frank E. Reynolds, officiated with interment in the Mt. Carmel cemetery, Littlestown. Serving as pallbearers were Arthur Mumert, Halbert Bankert, Harry Forney, Ralph Wantz, Kenneth Koontz and Albert Dickenson. The Rev. David S. Coffelt, Fairfield R. D.; August 13, Maynard S. Barnhart, Jr., Littlestown; a minister at the Gettysburg seminary; August 20, the Rev. Charles E. Heid, Gettysburg R. 1, pastor of the Mt. Says 7 Million U.S. Fighting Men

Cincinnati, July 24 (AP)—The director of Selective Service says the United States has got to find "7,000,000 men of critical skill and the capacity to fight."

Gen. Lewis B. Hershey warned against urging draft boards to defer men because of their skills, claiming "if we don't find them (the 7,000,000 men), you won't have any industry anyway." Hershey spoke at a luncheon here Thursday.

He explained there are 10,600,000 men between 18 and 27 and that, of these, 7,600,000 are classified, with 1,200,000 classified 1-A.

He added that 1,200,000 have not been classified because they are 18-year-olds, 2,700,000 are veterans, 742,000 have dependents, 536,000 are 4-F (failing to meet armed service standards), 133,000 are in farming and 133,000 are in the Reserves.

Navy Reservists May Expect Call

Philadelphia, July 24 (AP)—Some 15,000 Navy Reservists in the 4th Naval District can expect a call to active duty within the next three months, a public information officer said today.

Officials of the district, which includes all of Pennsylvania, Ohio and Delaware as well as southern New Jersey, said the first calls to active duty will be sent out within the next two weeks.

Essentially, the call will go to members of the Organized Reserve Corps below the rating of second class petty officer.

In certain cases, however, members of the Fleet Reserve and Volunteer Reserve will be summoned to active duty. These Reservists will be called "in certain rates where we're short-handed in the Organized Reserve," the Navy spokesman said.

BALKAN FRACAS 34 SERVICEMEN SEEN SIMILAR TO KOREAN WAR

By DEWITT MACKENZIE (AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)

The danger of Communist action in the Balkans, involving Greece, naturally leads to the uncomfortable question of whether such a development would inevitably lead to World War III.

That's a reasonable query in view of the general warning given by President Truman in his message to Congress last Wednesday. In studied, plain language he declared:

"I shall not attempt to predict the course of events. But I am sure that those who have it in their power to unleash or withhold acts of aggression must realize that new recourse to aggression in the world today might well strain to the breaking point the fabric of world peace."

Must Defend Greece What could be clearer than that? Such aggression could lead to a world war. However, the President didn't say it inevitably would lead to another general conflagration, and I don't believe he intended to convey any such ultimatum. Surely such a sweeping commitment must depend on developments.

One certainty is that we are committed to defend Greece against Red aggression. That much is inevitable. But who can foresee where the Greek upheaval might lead? It is possible that it might be confined to the Balkans. Probably that would depend on what sort of game Moscow played.

Judging from past performances Russia would duplicate her Korean performance in any Balkan upheaval. She would set the stage, equip her satellites militarily, and then push Bulgaria into the fray as the champion of communism. Moscow herself would keep clear of the shooting. She wouldn't be the aggressor—not she.

Well, now, anybody can see with half an eye that another world war could grow out of such a situation. But it hasn't grown out of the North Korean aggression as yet, and North Korea is a Red stooge.

The way things look now, any Balkan aggression would likely be after the style of the Korean assault. It would be another step in the general Bolshevik program of whittling the United States and her allies down militarily and economically by making them fight costly engagements in widely separated theatres.

But if Russia's operations are such an open-and-shut game, why don't the western allies call the turn now? The answer is that your Uncle Sam is a long-suffering guy who hates war. However, he will take only so much punishment, and when he is forced into action he strikes hard. Moreover he is equipped to strike mighty fast.

3 PENNSYLVANIA SOLDIERS IN KOREAN NEWS

Tokyo, July 24 (AP)—Three Pennsylvanians figured in news dispatches from Korea over the week-end.

Associated Press Staffer Max Desfor reported that Pfc Donald Roth-ermel of Trevorton, Pa., was one of three GIs who shot a Korean sniper dead on a flaming street in Taejon Thursday and probably saved a life in a party of newsmen and photographers.

The man who fired the shot was Pvt. Reuben K. Kimball of Baytown, Tex. He and Rothermel and Pvt. Raymond Devorak of Cleveland, O., had gone AWOL from a rear area to join the fight.

Famous Name
A gang of newsmen reached the scene just as Kimball, Rothermel and Devorak arrived. As the newsmen stopped to photograph a burning building, a Korean sniper, wearing white civilian clothes, aimed a rifle.

Kimball saw him, whipped out his 45 automatic and with one shot, dropped him. The newsmen and the trio of GIs jumped on a jeep and left the city at high speed.

A famous name figured in a news dispatch by Tom Lambert, AP correspondent working with the 25th Division. The name: Ike Eisenhower. The man: a 20-year-old private first class from Lebanon, Pa.

Eisenhower fired a carbine and three hand grenades at North Koreans storming in "perpetual motion" toward a hill held by a nest of 15 Americans.

But still the Reds came on. Eisenhower threw his last grenade at five yards range. Then, with another American covering their withdrawal, the 15 platoon members made for cover, heading down the hill, running, skipping, swimming through a swollen stream.

The soldier stood on the mound and calmly pitched grenade after grenade.

And, from AP Correspondent Milton Marmor aboard a Seventh Fleet aircraft carrier off Korea came an account of the exploits of Air Force Captain William W. Fincher, 34, of Bethlehem.

Fincher was among a group of jet pilots who strafed the Seoul area and its principal port of Inchon, on the west coast. The captain, who flew with the 13th and 9th Air Forces in the Pacific and European theaters in the last war, described blazing oil tanks at oil yards in Inchon as looking like "big red sunflowers."

TRY TO AVERT INFLATION IN BOOM SPENDING

By T. E. APPLIGATE

New York, July 24 (AP)—There's an even chance the nation's business boom can absorb the $10,000,000,000 military spending program without critical disruption of our standards of civilian life.

It depends on how well inflation can be avoided. Price boosts would reduce the amount of goods—military or other—that a dollar will buy. And this could make the whole program much more costly.

Today no one knows to what extent present purchasing power of the dollar will be maintained.

Some Will Suffer
President Truman warns there will be repercussions on our domestic economy. But he also has a plan aimed at keeping them in reasonable bounds.

From an economics standpoint some persons and some businesses are likely to suffer, at least temporarily.

As consumer production is cut back some workers will be out of jobs. But output of military goods will call for added manpower in other industries, such as aircraft and shipbuilding.

Taxes Will Go Up
Here are ways in which nearly every one will be affected:

Your taxes—both individual and business—will go up. If the controls the President asks become effective, you'll find credit terms a little stiffer when you go to buy an automobile, television set or almost any other article.

The government's problem is to spend $10 billion without stirring an inflation that could open wide cracks in the economy.

Considerable steel, aluminum and other materials will be diverted to military use. No one yet has said how much of each will be needed. As they are diverted there will be less for civilian use.

To put a check-rein on wild demand is the aim of the president's program. He seeks authority to control such main props of the business boom as consumer credit, construction and steel consumption.

Check New Homes
Obviously some industries will supply more than others to the military program. Tanks, airplane engines, ships will require large tonnage of steel, for instance.

To assure such supplies, the president wants direct authority to establish priorities, to allocate materials, and to limit the amounts used in non-essential manufacture.

In the housing field, where the government has moved to tighten mortgage terms, a move toward voluntary controls has been initiated.

The National Association of Home Builders this week urged its 17,000 members voluntarily to cut back their starts on new homes, which it said reached the record high of 142,000 in June.

OPPOSITION TO KING MOUNTING

Brussels, Belgium, July 24 (AP)—King Leopold and his Social Christian government today faced tightening opposition which promised to take a far more solid form than catcalls and press blasts.

A Socialist leader declared that a wave of strikes would start today in Belgium's Walloon area. They would spread, he said, until the king quits the throne he regained only two days ago.

The Socialist spokesman indicated that no general strikes are planned immediately. Expecting the abdication fight to be a long one, the anti-Leopold party is loath to use all its weapons at once.

Leopold has shown no sign he intends to submit to his opponents' demands that he abdicate and let his eldest son, Crown Prince Baudouin, reign.

Liberal ministers of state discovered this yesterday when they were summoned to a meeting of the Crown Council at Laeken palace. They withdrew in protest when told the king would only read them an address and they would have no chance to submit demands for his abdication.

The anti-Leopold Socialist state ministers already had withdrawn from the council. The king thus found his crown body reduced from 28 to 10—all members of the Social Christian party which voted to recall him from Switzerland.
